Schenck, Price, Smith & King LLP Partner Guests on Legal Radio Show

~ Renata A. Mizak speaks on elder law and estate planning~

Florham Park, NJ - Renata A. Mizak, Partner at Schenck, Price, Smith & King LLP, was a recent guest on 90.3 WHPC's 'Law You Should Know.'

In a wide-ranging interview with Host Kenneth J. Landau, Mizak discussed elder law, trust litigation, and special needs law. She emphasized the importance of estate planning by explaining, "Estate planning is not just for the wealthy. It's for anyone who wants to protect themselves, protect their loved ones, manage assets efficiently, avoid unnecessary costs and delays, and make decisions in advance. So to me, estate planning is an act of care."

She continued, "There is a genuine need for trust and estate attorneys ... Everyone eighteen and over needs to have an estate plan." She shared her experience over this past summer where she helped eighteen-year-olds get their powers of attorney, simple wills, and health care directives before they left for college.

According to John E. Ursin, Managing Partner, Renata Mizak is a leader in her field and a terrific public speaker. She is always very generous with her time educating the community. We appreciate Ken Landau featuring another SPSK attorney on his excellent, very informative show.
